

ethical leadership society

The Ethical Leadership Society is a dynamic and inspiring initiative that looks to forge an ethical approach to business practice and inclusive leadership. We want to ensure that the higher purpose that defines much of our personal lives can be reflected in our work and professional practice. It gives us the chance to change our collective future for the better.

The Ethical Leadership Society will provide a virtual (online) and physical (meetings and seminars) space to explore these issues. Its aim is to support people to realise an aspiration through the application of knowledge and tools. It will make the intangible tangible and allow ethical leaders at all levels to access products and approaches that are normally only available to large organisations.

The pressure to maintain an ethical and moral viewpoint is at its most pronounced in hard economic times. We believe that working to an ethical agenda can help us steer a sustainable course through troubled waters. This takes an effort of collective will, and the Ethical Leadership Society will provide you with support to do this. Its value will be in creating and sustaining a business approach that can deliver greater stability through an assertion of common values.

Ethical leadership inspires people; and this has a real value in business terms.

Resources

The Ethical Leadership Society website offers a range of resources to support its aspiration. These reflect cutting edge thinking and best practice, and they will allow us to refine and share our common experiences. The resources will strike a balance between informed information and consistent contact.

The site includes the following open access areas:

- The Library: holds papers, opinion and think pieces, and presentations and interviews with inspiring and experienced leaders.
- The Coffee Shop: where we share our personal experiences of ethical leadership, secure support, and discuss our burning issues.
- The Notice Board: here you can look for partners or collaborators for your ethical leadership initiatives, and post common information about events.
- The Resource Hub: home to a selection of links to cutting edge tools that help to realise the practical value of ethical leadership
- Conference Hall: where you can find information relating to ELS events and book places

ELS Members will have access to their own private forum areas and resources, enabling collaboration, discussion and development of their own approaches in a dedicated and secure environment.

Organisational membership will also give five free places at events, free toolkits, and discounts on ethical leadership retreats.

Individual members will have free access to two events, access to toolkits and discounts on other events.

Meetings & Seminars

There will be timetable of themed seminars and members meetings to assert a common purpose, share experiences, and to reflect on what works (it is good to know we are not alone). These seminars will present state of the art thinking that will draw on both academic and business practice. Our aim is to present the best of thinking to inform the best of practice, and to leave you in a position to shape your business to make it more attractive to clients, and to hone your competitive advantage. Individual members can attend one free event per year and organisational members get five free places at events per year.

All members get great discounts and offers on other events throughout the year.

Membership

So why join? The obvious reason is that the Society is the most complete and dedicated resource available for aspiring and practising ethical leaders. We want to develop it with you to be the touchstone for ethical leadership in the UK. Moreover, in the current economic climate, there is an expectation that the public sector and its private partners develop sustainable models that will deliver very real social value. This includes responsible and ethical procurement, and the ELS will give you the tools and a forum to develop better bidding strategies for this emerging sector. It will help you to do better business.

The ELS is a collaborative endeavour, and we will review and adapt the membership options to reflect our growing experience and confidence.

Membership Fees

Anyone can visit and post comments on the public access areas of the ELS forum. To take full advantage of membership benefits including access to events, bespoke tools and resources and dedicated secure areas of the website, individuals or organisations can purchase annual membership. Organisations can have ten named members; additional members can be added for £500.

Category	Fee
